Black Heritage Trail https://www.bostonusa.com/things-to- do/sightseeing-and-trails/black-heritage-trail/	The Black Heritage Trail* is a 1.6 mile walk through the heart of Boston's Beacon Hill neighborhood. The trail showcases residences and community buildings associated with a Black community that thrived on, and near, the north slope of Beacon Hill before, during, and after the American Civil War. Throughout that time, this community struggled and organized for equal rights and access to equal education. Community members championed the movement to abolish slavery and even housed freedom seekers on their journey along the Underground Railroad. Most sites along the trail remain private residences. However, the final stops—the Abiel Smith School and the African Meeting House—are part of the Museum of African American History which is open to the public.	FREE	Take the MBTA Green Line to Park Street stop.	The National Park Service, located at 46 Joy Street, offers free 90- minute tours of The Black Heritage Trail on a seasonal basis. Self- guided tours of the trail can be done online or by visiting the Abiel Smith School for maps and site brochures.

The facial land there	During the Salem Witch Trials more than 300 years ago, Salem was a small town without enough government officials or resources to conduct mass trials. Boston, the capital of the province, and Bostonians inevitably got drawn into the frenzy. Defendants from Salem were sent to, escaped from, and died in Boston's jail. Bostonians were accused of witchcraft. Boston even held its own witch trials. Of
