

Conflict of Interest Policy

It is the policy of AMDA-The Society for Post-Acute and Long-Term Care Medicine (AMDA) to ensure balance, independence, objectivity, and scientific rigor in all accredited education (including CME) activities. Accredited education content will be evidence based and free of commercial bias.

Anyone engaged in content development, planning or presentation of accredited education must disclose all financial relationships regardless of the amount or potential relevance of each relationship to the education, with ineligible companies**. You should disclose all financial relationships within the last 24 months to the Society prior to their involvement in the planning and/or the presenting of the accredited education. Persons who fail to disclose all financial relationships within the last 24 months may not participate in the planning or presenting of this accredited education. All identified relevant financial relationships will be mitigated, resolved, and disclosed to learners prior to the start of the activity.

The Society also requires those presenting accredited education to disclose off-label use of a device or medication, and their discussion of any experimental, new, or evolving topic prior to each accredited education activity.

**An ineligible company is any entity whose primary business is producing, marketing, selling, re-selling, or distributing healthcare products used by or on patients.

AMDA complies with the requirements of the National Physician Payment Transparency Program OPEN PAYMENTS (Physician Payments Sunshine Act).
