Booth: 22    AnthroMed Education

AnthroMed Education is a provider of Speech-Language Pathology services to schools throughout Illinois. Since 2019 we have served over 75+ school districts. AnthroMed Education's mission is to change and improve how schools seek and retain support for speech services every year. We focus exclusively on providing the very best quality speech-language pathology services and helping students one school at a time.

Since our founding, we have been constantly pushing the envelope to create a more enriching environment for our SLPs. Our clinical support aims to provide helpful resources, information, and therapy materials for our team members. We have a highly supportive culture and understand the complexities and challenges faced by school-based SLPs. Our team of SLPs is the heart and soul of AnthroMed Education, each of whom is working to deliver better outcomes for the students we serve.

Booth: 27    Lewis University

The Speech-Language Pathology programs at Lewis University are housed within the College of Nursing and Health Sciences, along with Occupational Therapy and a developing Physical Therapy program. The Speech-Language Pathology department offers a new B.S. in Communication Sciences degree, with an accelerated option to complete the M.S. in SLP in four semesters rather than six. The graduate SLP program is admitting its fourth cohort of students in 2023. This program provides practicum throughout the program, allowing student SLPs to serve people with communication disorders who would not otherwise have access to communication and swallowing services. The didactic curriculum is delivered two to three courses at a time, in 8-week terms of study. Students enjoy the fast-paced classes and immersive clinical experiences that the Lewis SLP programs offer.

Want to be an SLP? Check out Lewis University where the traditions of liberal learning, moral values and preparation for professional work come together. In its 90th year, Lewis University continues to meet learners where they are, so they can achieve their dreams. Lewis SLPs are prepared to help people with communicate disorders, so they can participate more fully in school, work, and life. They are ready to use their talents to foster healthier communities....for a better world.
